

We should not commercialise everything. Lets keep the phone a personal thing and enjoyable to use. Please keep the list active as otherwise the phone becomes an irritant.

further i believe the marketers are just fooling and tricking people, i do not believe anybody signs up anything with intent, when they receive a marketing call.

also charity people make call all the time. I know they have are collecting money for good cause but there has to be better ways rather than troubling people via phone essentially if you have a do not call list it would save a lot of resources for the marketers and save a lot time for the end users.

I would actually suggest such a list for mails too. There are lot of junk mails which a waste of resource (papers require cutting down of trees) for the country and this makes things expensive for everybody.
